Executive Summary

A technical-savvy, dedicated, and motivated web developer with special focus in C# and object-oriented programming. A recent grad of Coding Dojo, a 14 week software development/programming immersive program. Prior to that, I was working in various capacities namely a professional income tax preparer/office manager and an instructor teaching business administration to high school students. My family background and tendencies took me to business education, but I realized recently that this was not where my passion lies. With my lifelong learning philosophy, I took on the journey for learning different web technologies both online and onsite. Moving forward, I look to join a team of engineers where I can continue to learn, collaborate, and contribute to problem solving at a large scale.
